

Caring for Oxford Canal

We're the charity working to protect and bring to life this 250-year-old network of canals and rivers spanning England and Wales. Not so long ago many canals were abandoned, and some lost forever. Today, with your support, wildlife is recovering, history is alive, boats are plentiful and spending time in this environment is contributing to our health and happiness.

Our mission is to keep this extraordinary network of canals and rivers alive, teeming with wildlife, transforming places they run through and enriching all of our lives. Your support today could help us care for Oxfordshire's canals and many more places, for today and generations to come.

Making life better by water

Keeping history alive

While today, the picturesque Oxford Canal meanders slowly through the countryside, in the 18th century it had a very different feel.

Its arrival to Banbury in 1778 brought a cheap supply of coal from Warwickshire, and much prosperity to the town. The first delivery of 200 tons of coal was met by a large and enthusiastic crowd of spectators.

For the next 15 years, it was the most important and profitable transport link in Britain, with most commercial traffic travelling between the Midlands and London using the route.

5 things to do in Banbury

- 1 Take a boat trip along the canal and learn more about its history.
- 2 Enjoy a stroll along the canal, you'll find a sculpture, a poem on a lockgate and a bridge named after waterways champion, Tom Rolt.
- 3 Visit Banbury Museum and discover more about the Tooley family.
- 4 Walk to Banbury Cross, in the centre of this historic town just a few minutes' stroll from the canal.
- 5 Make the most of the towpath and enjoy a traffic-free cycle ride to Cropredy (7.7km/4.7 miles).

Did you know?

Tooley's Boatyard is a scheduled ancient monument and the oldest working dry dock in Britain. Boats have been built and repaired in this boatyard since 1790.

In the centre of this bustling town, the Oxford Canal offers you the chance to step away from the busy streets and enjoy a gentler pace where you can connect with history and nature.
